INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this submission is to provide the Commission of Inquiry (COI) with background about the appropriate legal framework and essential factual evidence concerning the “March of Return” riots along the Gaza-Israel border. All of the sources referenced herein are publicly available on the internet.

The question facing the COI is whether they will exercise independence of scope, thought and action, or whether they will be constrained by the imbalances of fact and law enshrined in their founding document, Resolution S-28/1, as adopted on May 18, 2018. The resolution condemns only Israel, ignores Israel’s right to self-defense, and completely omits mention of Hamas. Furthermore, in its condemnation of Israel, for example in OP1, the resolution prejudges the result of any COI investigation by determining in advance that Israel is “in violation of international humanitarian law, international human rights law and relevant United Nations resolutions.” Moreover, Resolution S-28/1 is replete with conclusory language—referring repeatedly to “civilians” engaged in “peaceful protests”—that purports to dispose of the fundamental questions facing the COI.

Thomas M. Franck, the late NYU scholar and former president of the American Society of International Law, lamented the emergence of this UN pattern in his authoritative article on procedural due process in human rights fact-finding by international agencies.¹ Referring to a 1968 General Assembly resolution that had taken it for granted “that Israel was in breach of its international obligations,” Prof. Franck criticized the creation of a fact-finding mission whose mandate included “conclusory language that palpably interfered with the integrity of the fact-finding process by violating the essential line between political assumptions and issues to be impartially determined.” Prof. Franck’s evaluation of such resolutions neatly summarizes the essential defects of the S-28/1 mandate: “A fact-finding group created by terms of reference that seek to direct its conclusions is essentially a waste of time. Its findings, at most, will reassure those whose minds are already made up.”²

It is the hope of United Nations Watch that the COI will, through a report that fully considers all sides, demonstrate the integrity of the fact-finding process.

LEGAL FRAMEWORK

As a preliminary matter, it is imperative that the COI determine the correct legal framework under which to evaluate the facts. While some UN officials, and resolution S-28/1 itself, suggest that the applicable body of law is the law enforcement paradigm under international human rights law, this is based on the erroneous characterization of the events as: (a) “protests”; (b) “peaceful”; and (c) “civilian.”

In fact, as the UN’s Palmer Commission concluded in 2011, Israel and Hamas have been engaged in an international armed conflict for many years.³ The current round of violence is part of that armed conflict. As documented below, many of the so-called protesters were actually Hamas operatives—not “civilians”—acting on orders to breach Israel’s Gaza border fence, invade Israel’s border communities and commit terrorist attacks against Israelis.

They fomented violent riots, used weapons to attack Israel’s border security officers, and perpetrated terrorism to achieve these goals. Accordingly, Israel’s use of force against protesters must be evaluated under the framework of International Humanitarian Law (IHL), also known as the law of armed conflict. This is consistent with the judicial conclusion of the Supreme Court of Israel in its May 24, 2018 decision about the IDF’s rules of engagement, that protesters taking an active part in hostilities are subject to the law of armed conflict.⁴

Regrettably, Resolution S-28/1 contains significant omissions or misstatements which affect the legal analysis. Among other things:

1. Resolution S-28/1 omits any mention of Israel’s right to self-defense, which is enshrined in Article 51 of the UN Charter. This right to self-defense does not demand that Israel sit back and wait to suffer casualties before it fights back, but is triggered by imminent threats. As a High-Level Panel of experts appointed by former Secretary-General Kofi Anan explained in 2004, “long established international law” permits a threatened state to “take military action as long as the threatened attack is imminent, no other means would deflect it and the action is proportionate.”⁵

³ See Report of the Secretary-General’s Panel of Inquiry on the 31 May 2010 Flotilla Incident (Palmer Report) (Sept. 2011), Paragraph 73, http://www.un.org/News/dh/infocus/middle_east/Gaza_Flotilla_Panel_Report.pdf.

⁴ HCJ 3003/18 Yesh Din v. IDF Chief of General Staff, available at <https://supremedecisions.court.gov.il/Home/Download?path=HebrewVerdicts\18\030\030\k08&file Name=18030030.K08&type=4>.

2. Resolution S-28/1 falsely characterizes all of the Palestinians at the border fence as “civilians” and their activities as “peaceful protests.” The resolution title itself presumptively refers to “civilian protests;” PP8 refers to Israel’s “intentional targeting” of Palestinian “civilians”; OP1 refers to “peaceful protests;” OP3 refers to “demonstrations” of “civilians” that are “peaceful”; OP5 refers to Israel’s “assaults” on the large-scale “civilian protest.” These blanket characterizations of the individuals on the Gaza side and of their intentions and actions are false, incomplete and/or misleading. Hamas rules Gaza and played an essential role in overseeing or encouraging the events at the border, dispatching Hamas operatives under the guise of protests to engage in hostilities. Palestinian rioters directly participating in hostilities are not entitled to the protection afforded to civilians. Article 51(3) of the First Additional Protocol to the Geneva Conventions (1949) permits attacks on civilians “for such time as they take direct part in hostilities.”⁶ According to the ICRC commentary, this means “acts of war which by their nature or purpose are likely to cause actual harm to the personnel and equipment of the enemy armed forces.”⁷ Therefore, engaging in violent acts intended to breach Israel’s border fence with Gaza and/or cause harm on the Israeli side of the fence would cause rioters to lose protected civilian status. Significantly, when the protesters have stayed away from the fence, Israel has responded with less force resulting in much lower casualty rates.⁸
3. Resolution S-28/1 refers to Israel’s “disproportionate and indiscriminate use of force,” suggesting that “the extensive loss of life” on the Palestinian side renders the force used by Israel not proportional. However, notwithstanding the common misconception, the concept of proportionality in IHL is not a question of comparing the body count—of tabulating and comparing the number of Israelis killed or injured versus the number of Palestinians killed or injured. Rather, it is a prospective consideration based on the military commander's assessment of whether the expected civilian casualties will be excessive in relation to the anticipated military gain. In fact, IHL accepts the possibility of civilian casualties.⁹ The correct legal analysis would look at whether the Israeli commander who decided to employ live ammunition in a particular scenario determined that the expected civilian casualties would not be excessive in relation to the anticipated military gain, presumably preventing the breach of the border fence. It is a case by case analysis that can only be properly undertaken based on facts and data in the control of the Israeli military.

4. Resolution S-28/1 omits any reference to Hamas violations of international law, which are widespread and severe. As documented below, these include: targeting Israeli civilians in violation of Article 51(2) of the First Additional Protocol to the Geneva Convention of 1949; using Palestinian civilians, including women and children, as human shields, in violation of Article 51(7) of the First Additional Protocol; and disguising its own fighters as civilians, in violation of Article 37 of the First Additional Protocol — the crime of perfidy.

It must also be noted that even if the human rights law enforcement paradigm were applicable to Israel's response, that paradigm does not limit the use of deadly force only to cases of imminent threat to life or deadly injury, as some have suggested. The law enforcement paradigm recognizes that quelling a riot is a legitimate reason to use force. This is clear from the negotiations over Article 6 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR), which provides: "Every human being has the inherent right to life. This right shall be protected by law. No one shall be arbitrarily deprived of his life." The U.S. and UK argued over whether this Article should list a specific set of exceptions where a killing would not be considered arbitrary. The UK had proposed three exceptions, including quelling a riot. The U.S. agreed that quelling a riot was a legitimate exception, but vehemently objected to creating a list of exceptions on grounds that such a list would be too limiting and could not cover all possible exceptions.¹⁰

⁹ Article 57 of Protocol Additional to the Geneva Conventions of 12 Aug. 1949, and Relating to the Protection of Victims of International Armed Conflicts (Protocol I).

¹⁰ Summary Record of the Hundred and Thirty-Ninth Meeting, Commission on Human Rights, U.N. Doc. E/CN.4/SR.139 (March 30, 1950), available at <http://hr-travaux.law.virginia.edu/document/iccpr/ecn4sr139/nid-1706> (Last accessed May 27, 2018).

The riot quelling exception also is explicitly stated in Article 2(2) of the European Convention on Human Rights (1950), which states:

Deprivation of life shall not be regarded as inflicted in contravention of this Article when it results from the use of force which is no more than absolutely necessary: (a) in defense of any person from unlawful violence; (b) in order to effect a lawful arrest or to prevent the escape of a person lawfully detained; (c) in action lawfully taken for the purpose of quelling a riot or insurrection.

Even the International Committee for the Red Cross, author of the Geneva Conventions, accepts that in the law enforcement context, quelling a riot is a legitimate basis for use of force.¹¹

FACTUAL CONTEXT

The sources listed below provide examples of Hamas incitement, terrorism, and attacks against Israel during the March of Return riots, primarily during the month of May 2018. This list of statements and documentary evidence is not exhaustive, and there are many more examples publicly available on the internet from these and other sources.

Hamas leaders incite rioters to murder Israelis and rally the crowds to violence

- Hamas Gaza leader Yehya Sinwar shouts: “We will tear down the border and we will tear out their hearts from their bodies.” Al-Jazeera, quoted by human rights lawyer Arsen Ostrosky, April 6, 2018.²¹
- Hamas leader Ismail Haniyeh says: “Palestine and Jerusalem belong to us...We will break the walls of the blockade, remove the occupation entity and return to all of Palestine.” Times of Israel, April 9, 2018.²²
- Hamas leader Ismail Haniyeh says: “Our people will outnumber the occupation and force it from our land.” Chicago Tribune, April 20, 2018. ²³
- Hamas Wire-Cutters unit who cut through border fence shout: “Khaybar, Khaybar, O Jews, the army of Muhammad has begun to return”; and one of the members warns “this enemy is destined for perdition,” and Israeli settlers should “leave immediately, before it is too late...” Al-Aqsa TV, quoted by MEMRI, April 27, 2018.²⁴
- Hamas Gaza leader Yehya Sinwar rallies the crowd: “We would rather die as martyrs than die out of oppression and humiliation...We are ready to die, and tens of thousands will die with us.” New York Times, May 9, 2018.²⁵

Other Hamas admissions showing border violence is part of ongoing armed conflict between Hamas and Israel, and is instigated and supported by Hamas

- Hamas spokesman Hazem Qassem admits that Hamas pays $200 to $3,000 to the families of Gazans killed or wounded in the rallies. Hamas website (quoted by MEMRI), April 5, 2018.²⁸
- Hamas co-founder Mahmoud al-Zahhar admits to Al Jazeera that calling the border protests “peaceful resistance” is “deceiving the public.” Al-Jazeera (quoted by MEMRI), May 13, 2018 statement.²⁹
- Hamas Politburo member Salah al-Bardawil admits in TV interview that 50 out of 62 people killed on May 14 were Hamas members, and more than 50% of those killed at border since March 1 were Hamas members. Baladna TV (quoted by MEMRI and Meir Amit Intelligence and Terrorism Information Center), May 14, 2018.³⁰
- Hamas press release admits that the marches are being conducted by “the organizations of jihad fighters,” and managed and supervised by “combat organizations,” concluding “This is jihad — victory or causing death in the way of Allah.” Hamas press release (published by Jerusalem Center for Public Affairs).³¹

Testimony by Israeli residents of Gaza border towns about life in the shadow of Hamas terrorism

- Times of Israel: “Seeing my father going out to put out fires almost every day for the last eight months and then seeing him coming home smelling of smoke, and seeing in his eyes another burnt field and another animal covered in soot — yes, that too is traumatic.”¹⁷⁵
- The Spectator: “Israeli children living in the border communities report markedly higher mental health problems than the rest of the country. Three of Davidi’s children have been diagnosed with post-traumatic stress disorder.”¹⁷⁶
- Jerusalem Post: “Just last week, a kite with an explosive device landed in the Kibbutz schoolyard...The Kibbutz members received a friendly WhatsApp to remind their children never to touch kites or balloons.”¹⁷⁷
- Ynet: “Residents of Kerem Shalom, and particularly young children, have been suffering from breathing difficulties and vomiting caused by the smoke of the burning tires... ‘In recent days, there were grave incidents of children walking around outside when all of a sudden a wave of tear gas and black smoke came. They simply lay down on the floor and couldn’t breathe.’”¹⁷⁸
